COLLEGE STATION GOES GREEN

Water Conservation... Energy Conservation... Waste Reduction... Green Building/Land Use... Air Quality... Those will be the five key components of the College Station's "Green College Station" campaign. The city plans roll existing environmentally friendly programs and the creation of new initiatives under the new campaign's umbrella to help educate the community.

College Station's commitment to the effort was evident as on April 24th the City Council appointed an eight-member "Technical Task Force" to help oversee the green efforts. The task force includes experts in emissions reduction, storm water management, xeriscaping, and "green" construction.

In addition to educating the community and encouraging residents to use city environmental programs, the city has committed to a "municipal leadership program" which is highlighted by:

- Energy consumption reduction in all city facilities over the next 5-7 years.

"We are fully engaged into this process. This is part of the City Council's goal to make College Station a great place to live."

GLENN BROWN
City Manager

- Follow Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) standards for new and remodeled City facilities.
- Migrating the fleet vehicles to hybrid vehicle where applicable

- Water reduction at city facilities through improved irrigation practices, efficient plumbing fixtures, and water reuse.

A good example of the impact of "Green College Station" is the existing Energy Audit program, managed by College Station Utilities. Through 172 on-site inspections in 2007, there was annual savings of about $205 per customer.
